Weinhold Legal provides input to a study for European Commission proposal for new amending directive: cross-border mergers, divisions and moves

Weinhold Legal has provided input into the Czech Republic chapter of a multi-jurisdictional study, subsequently the basis for the European Commission's recently published proposal for a directive to ease the merger, division and relocation of companies within the EU.

The proposal includes new rules for simple mergers and new protective measures for shareholders and creditors. The procedure for cross-border mergers is also amended by the proposal - primarily to include additional protections for members and creditors. The proposal also includes new rules on cross-border conversions (from one EU state to another) and new rules are also introduced for divisions (into two or more entities across borders).

The proposal is available here, the European Commission's press release is available here and the study is available here.
